WASHINGTON:

SATURDAY AFTERNOON, NOVEMBER 22.

The Session is the great event before us.

The Congress of the nation is again to assemble at the capital, and our city is again to assume the gay, the buoyant, the busy and the life-like pied by the forms of distinguished men from the various sections of the country. emotions of universal pleasure and gratitude ? How often have the clouds of national wo heated steam removed. gathered around us, and how often have the threats of national annihilation and ignominy been sounded in our ears? But they have passed away, like the storm-cloud of summer. and left a clear blue sky and a gorgeous sun above us. May their joyous beauty be evermore seen, undimmed by clouds of dark foreboding, undisturbed by the commotions of discord and treason!

We do not agree with a writer whom we to day quote in regard to the character of the proceedings of the approaching session. We have passed a fearful national crisis, and there is gratitude in the breast of every one who looks back upon the dangers we have passed. It is in such an hour of deliverance that men are wont to cling closer together, and to rejoice in the means of their escape. Those means comprise the bond of fraternal union that binds us together-a bond that is now held doubly dear to the heart of every patriot and of every re-

The Presidential question will prove of exciting interest this winter; but never were the prospects fairer of entering upon its discussion in a better spirit. There are many candidates, many interests, many conflicting views; but there is also a fund of charity and good feeling that will not perish in the ardent competi-

The legislation of Congress will be rapidly consummated, and for the welfare of the country. Questions of radical difference will not soon be introduced. The high-tariff party are not going to urge their measures upon Connot going to urge their measures upon Congress; and the increase of duties upon a few special subjects will be effected almost without God; and as you insist that he does believe, he gress; and the increase of duties upon a few the appearance of an opposition. A postal law will be enacted with the certain lights of experience; a willing ear will be turned to the great and glorious scheme of African colonization, and beneficent results will be realized; and the grand project of promoting the welfare of the railroads in the United States, as proposed and it is safe to discredit him in either case. by the Messrs. Green and Clarke, will find favor in the eyes of wise legislators. This last subject it may not be amiss for us here to explain.

It is proposed by these gentlemen to urge upon Congress a modification of the laws relative to contracts for carrying the mail, so as to authorize the Post Office Department to contract for the perpetual use of railroads, and, instead of paying, as now, quarterly on contracts for four years, to advance, in five per cent. bonds of the United States, chargeable upon the revenues of the Post Office Department, an amount the interest upon which at six per cent. would equal the payments now made. The effects of this scheme are thus explained by its authors :

"The Government now pays $300 a mile for would urge that, instead of paying $300 a mile per annum, the department should deliver, on a contract in perpetuity, five $1,000 bonds, rate, the charges upon the department would be reduced from $300 to $250 a mile per annum, and the $50 per mile saved would create a sinking fund, which will in a few years pay off the bonds, and give the use of such roads effecting a vast saving in the present annual expenditures of the Post Office Department, and a consequent reduction in the rate of post-

The Case of Mr. Thrasher.

The New York Courier and Enquirer has an article fully justifying the conviction of Mr. Thrasher under the Spanish laws-an article that if credited will totally prevent the interference of our Government in his favor. The Courier states that he was cognizant of the plan of invasion, and had boasted of the advantages he would derive from its success. This is in character with that journal; but what are we to think of the merchants of New York by whom it is upheld? In every controversy it is the enemy of America and American republicanism

Thus was not even allowed a seat at the trial.

THE DIFFERENCE .- As an evidence of our superior manner of transacting business in this morning on 7th street, making good their way clarionette, Mr. Burke the violin, and Otto city, we may state that the report of the pro. from the City Post Office to the Intelligencer ceedings of our Common Councils is always corner, where they were brought up by a counabout three times as long as that of either Bal- try wagon, which they came nigh bringing timore or Philadelphia; and our city affairs are down. > General Pillow for the Vice Presidency. We have of late heard the name of this gentleman repeatedly spoken in connexion with this office; and in the Pennsylvanian of yesterday he is nominated by a correspondent, who briefly reviews his military services in Mexico, and says that "his position as a Democrat, and his views on the various questions of national policy now before the country, are well known, and it may be believed that he would be an accepted candidate for the position in connexion with which his name has been mentioned."

The editor of the Pennsylvanian intimates that as Mr. Buchanan will be brought before a National Convention with great unanimity, it does not become the people of that State to interfere with the nomination of the second officer; but that "it is due to say that in the character of General Pillow, of Tennessee, there are many of those elements that command confidence and success. Long and intimately identified with Southern politics-the bosom friend of the lamented Polk-an able lawyer-a soldier whose valor has been displayed on more than one battle-field-and a citizen of stainless character-he would, if nominated, make a most acceptable candidate to the Democracy sire. Its groundwork consisted of mammoth of the United States." So, then, here is a difficulty got snugly over.

THE CREATURE COMFORT .- One of the most bloody domestic tragedies that has lately been recorded occurred on Wednesday night, near Albany. A husband and wife, named Moore, receipts, we understand, amounted to $3,000. had been to a neighbor's, in the early part of the evening, where they both drank so much liquor that they did not know what they were about. On returning home, it is supposedfor the evidence is merely circumstantial-Moore took a double-barrel gun and killed his wife with one charge, and himself with the other.
